

The Big Board on your wall

Once you know exactly what you're building, it's time to set up your software development dashboard for Iteration 1 of development. Your dashboard is actually just a big board on the wall of your office that you can use to keep tabs on what work is in the pipeline, what's in progress, and what's done.

Usually your project board is a whiteboard, so you can use it again and again between iterations and projects.
